PLATE XXXII

A CHIEF'S YAM HOUSE IN KASANA'I

This illustrates the display of yams in the interstices between the logs of the wall, and the decorations of coconuts, running round the gable, along the supports and the walls. This yam house was quite recently put up and its barge boards had not yet been erected. (See Div. IV.)

PLATE XXXIII

FILLING A YAM HOUSE IN YALUMUGWA

The yams are taken from the conical heaps and put into the bwayma (store houses) by the brother-in-law (wife's brother) of the owner. Note the decorations on the gable—the owner being a gumguya' u (chief of lower rank). (See Div. IV.)
